

Myrtle Beach Offers Very Affordable Alternative to Pricy Florida Winter Escape

When it comes to summer vacation getaways, Myrtle Beach is usually high on the list as a favorite destination. However, more and more visitors are discovering that Myrtle Beach is a perfect haven for "snowbirds", with amazingly low prices and without all the hustle of the tourist season.

Myrtle Beach, SC (PRWeb) December 20, 2007 -- Unlike much of the nation, the Myrtle Beach area enjoys mild temperatures throughout the winter months, with average temperatures seldom below the 40's. While icy roads and bitter chills lock most people inside until spring, our residents can still enjoy the outdoors and the variety of area winter events. During the second week of December 2007, our days reached the mid 70's for over a week. Walks on the beach are quiet and enjoyable, traffic and restaurants are uncrowded, and the shopping centers and shows are as good as ever. Best of all, rates for condos and beach houses are so low that anybody can enjoy a Myrtle Beach winter rental for a week or a even a month on what a couple of days in Florida would cost.

Local events in the area give visitors plenty to enjoy during the holiday and winter season:

*Celebrate Christmas at the beach with live holiday performances at the Alabama Theatre, the Carolina Opry, and Dixie Stampede, all of which have Christmas shows. Shopping meccas such as Barefoot Landing and Broadway at the beach offer the variety of the big city, and have no crowds or summertime parking problems.

*Brookgreen Gardens hosts Nights of a Thousand Candles with candles lining the garden walkways. Ripley's Aquarium near Broadway decorates with over 50 lighted trees spread throughout the exhibits.

*Rivertown Christmas in nearby Conway combines the historic beauty of the city with pictures and stories with Santa, carriage rides and river cruises. Truly, Christmas in Myrtle Beach is something to behold.

*There are also several New Year's celebrations to choose from, such as the 2001 Nightclub Weekend Extravaganza, or the upscale celebration hosted by the Avista Resort. The House of Blues and several other nightspots provide a variety of ways to bring the new year in with dining and dance.

*Nothing could be more romantic than a Valentine's Day spent at the beach, replacing winter snow with a warm indoor pool and wine by the Jacuzzi. Since accommodations are priced so low, visitors have plenty of money left over for that romantic meal and night on the town that the ladies long for.

Condolux Vacations in North Myrtle Beach offers unbeatable rates on their luxury resorts from November to March.
